Submission Content

A github repository will be linked. The website only works locally at the moment - it was functioning on Heroku up to very recently, but tinkering with some files has resulted in an issue with Heroku deployment. The issue should be remedied soon.

Project Status

The base of the website and the filtering programs are both complete - the goal now is to integrate them on the website, and add many more features and aesthetic improvements to the website. The core functionality of a website that screens for text should all be there, the goal would thus be to merge the two. A lot more can be done on improving the website, but the basics are there.
